A Thought for Today
By A. C. Lawson, Evergreen, Va.

"Men ought always to pray," Luke 18:7.

"Christ's soldiers fight 'least on their knees. A pray more and worry less," D. L. Moody.

"Ere you left your room this morning, Did you think to pray? In the name of Christ our Savior, Did you use for loving favor, As a shield today?"

When you met with great temptations, Did you think to pray? By His dying love and merit, Did you claim the life of Spirit, As your guide and stay? The more we pray the more we forget to be unthankful, discontented, grumbling. We forget to be anxious and worried, because we lay our burdens on the Savior. We forget to be pious, because we draw near to the source of all joy. We cease to sin as much as before, because the heart becomes purified in its intercourse with God. He that knows how to pray has the secret of safety in property and of support in trouble. He has the power of soothing every care, of subduing every passion, and of adding a relish to every enjoyment. Many things are good for us, but none so good as to draw nigh to God. For we know and realize that if we draw nigh to God He will draw nigh to us, and will take us in His arms and bless us beyond measure.

We should recall that the Good Shepherd is able to protect His sheep; for while He lays down His life for them, He takes it again in victory over sin and death (see vv. 17, 18). The Saviour seemed to have been defeated at Calvary, but He arose again, and ever liveth to make intercession on our behalf (Heb. 7:25).

III. He Seeks Other Sheep (v. 16). The other sheep Jesus had in mind were probably the Gentiles. The shepherds He had had were Jews, but the day was to come when the Gentiles were to hear and believe. His desire for them may well stir in our hearts an eagerness to go out and bring in all—both Jew and Gentile—who will, by believing in Christ, become members of His one fold.

Note the word "must" in verse 16. It does not say "if convenient," nor "when we can raise enough money," nor "after our local debts are paid." There is a divine imperative here—"it must" be done.

Let us not fail to gather the full significance of the expression "one flock, one shepherd." We are not interested in any manufactured unity of man-made organizations. Certainly we will not accept unity which means compromise of essential truth. But unity under Christ, the one great shepherd, that we want, and will have. He makes that certain—"they shall be one flock." Let us not put hindrances in the way of that kind of unity, and let us not be deluged about seeking the "other sheep." Now a final word.

IV. He Keeps All His Sheep (v. 27-30).

These words (said after a period of weeks had elapsed) stress the blessed assurance which comes to those who follow Christ. Jesus rebuked the Jews for their unbelief, telling them that they were not His sheep.

Those who are His have been given to Him by the Father—an eternal gift to Him—and He gives to them eternal life.

The power back of this whole matter is evident in verse 28. Christ is God. He who is in Christ's hand is also in the Father's hand, "and no man is able to pluck them out of the Father's hand." Instead of trying to modify that statement, or to quarrel with those who believe it, every Christian ought to accept it and shout "Hallelujah!"

From an English paper: "A friend of mine brings back one thrilling little memory of his war time holiday. At the hotel where he put up was billeted a Czech flying officer. One morning just as breakfast was starting there was a roar of aerial engines as two Czech planes, who had just finished in first course, recognized a German plane. He darted out the hotel and within an incredibly few minutes was soaring up in his lighter plane after the enemy. The rider had dropped a bomb or two, without doing much damage, but was overtaken by the Czech ace, who shot him down in the sea and flew back. My friend says that the Czech was back at the breakfast table, finishing his meal, in not much more than half an hour."

JESUS THE GOOD SHEPHERD

LESSON TEXT—John 10:1-16, 27-30. GOLDEN TEXT—"I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd gives his life for the sheep."—John 10:11.

Beautiful and meaningful as they are, none of the other figures of types of our Lord's redemptive work have a stronger appeal than that of the good shepherd. Even those who have never tended sheep nor yet seen them under the shepherd's care sense the telling aptness of the allegory of the Good Shepherd. We know how those who are like sheep, and we soon learn to know and to trust Christ as the True Shepherd of the flock.

The center of the picture is the Good Shepherd, and it is around Him that we group our thoughts.

I. He Knows His Sheep (vv. 1-5).

At night, whenever possible, the sheep were brought into a fold, a walled-in enclosure with shelters and with a single gate. Many different flocks were kept together under the care of an under-shepherd. In the morning the shepherds came to lead forth the flock. They came by the door, not as the thieves of the night, who sought to come in by stealth over the wall.

When the shepherd called, his own sheep responded. We are told that they would not come at the call of a stranger—not being ready to trust him.

The application is obvious, and yet a word is in order. We ought to turn ourselves and see whether we do indeed know our Lord's voice. Do we respond when He calls? Then, too, let us be on the lookout against those who profess to be shepherds, who lead themselves "pastors" or "reverend," and have only one purpose—to despoil the sheep. They are "thieves and robbers"—Jesus said so. They are only interested as long as it pays. The true shepherd cares for his sheep.

II. He Protects His Sheep (vv. 6-10).

Not only thieves, but wild animals attack sheep, and it is said that often the shepherd died to protect them from harm. But the hireling, caring for what he can get out of it, is not interested any longer. When danger appears, he flees. He has not the real shepherd's heart and cares not if the sheep be destroyed. Having stolen them to enrich himself, he will not defend them at the cost of his own life.

Note the sharp contrast of "I am the good shepherd" with the dark picture of the faithless hirelings. Not only does it magnify His goodness, but it deepens the blackness of their sin.

We should recall that the Good Shepherd is able to protect His sheep; for while He lays down His life for them, He takes it again in victory over sin and death (see vv. 17, 18). The Saviour seemed to have been defeated at Calvary, but He arose again, and ever liveth to make intercession on our behalf (Heb. 7:25).

III. He Seeks Other Sheep (v. 16). The other sheep Jesus had in mind were probably the Gentiles. The shepherds He had had were Jews, but the day was to come when the Gentiles were to hear and believe. His desire for them may well stir in our hearts an eagerness to go out and bring in all—both Jew and Gentile—who will, by believing in Christ, become members of His one fold.

Note the word "must" in verse 16. It does not say "if convenient," nor "when we can raise enough money," nor "after our local debts are paid." There is a divine imperative here—"it must" be done.

Let us not fail to gather the full significance of the expression "one flock, one shepherd." We are not interested in any manufactured unity of man-made organizations. Certainly we will not accept unity which means compromise of essential truth. But unity under Christ, the one great shepherd, that we want, and will have. IV. He Keeps All His Sheep (vv. 27-30).

These words (said after a period of weeks had elapsed) stress the blessed assurance which comes to those who follow Christ. Jesus rebuked the Jews for their unbelief, telling them that they were not His sheep.

Those who are His have been given to Him by the Father—an eternal gift to Him—and He gives to them eternal life.

The power back of this whole matter is evident in verse 28. Christ is God. He who is in Christ's hand is also in the Father's hand, "and no man is able to pluck them out of the Father's hand." Instead of trying to modify that statement, or to quarrel with those who believe it, every Christian ought to accept it and shout "Hallelujah!"

What To Do When A Fuse Blows

When electricity suddenly goes off in a part of your home or throughout, proceed as follows:

- See if your neighbor's lights are on. If they are, the chances are a fuse has "blown".
- Disconnect all appliances and lamps that were in use when the electricity went off.
- Go to your fuse box. Look at the fuse "windows". If the window is unadorned or the metal inside is burned in two, that's the "blown" fuse.
- Stand on a dry surface, be sure hands are dry, pull the main switch to "off" (that cuts off all electricity and makes everything safe).
- Uncover the blown fuse and replace it with one of proper size. Then, throw main switch to "on" position.
- Find the defective cord or appliance. Repair it. Don't overload any circuit. If the fuse continues to blow, call an electrician.

What To Do When A Fuse Blows

When electricity suddenly goes off in a part of your home or throughout, proceed as follows:

- See if your neighbor's lights are on. If they are, the chances are a fuse has "blown".
- Disconnect all appliances and lamps that were in use when the electricity went off.
- Go to your fuse box. Look at the fuse "windows". If the window is unadorned or the metal inside is burned in two, that's the "blown" fuse.
- Stand on a dry surface, be sure hands are dry, pull the main switch to "off" (that cuts off all electricity and makes everything safe).
- Uncover the blown fuse and replace it with one of proper size. Then, throw main switch to "on" position.
- Find the defective cord or appliance. Repair it. Don't overload any circuit. If the fuse continues to blow, call an electrician.
